

PCC Task 1

Event : An E-sport gaming competition, on different levels, that shall include, teams as well as individual e-sporting games. The teams sports can include the likes of top games such as PUBG, Valorant, Free Fire, etc., while FIFA and many other games can head the list of the individual gaming event.

Vision : An e-sport can be organized, which will not just interest the tech freaks but will also attract the interest of those who are not that much sound in terms of technicality. This event will give an equal chance to everyone to showcase their talents. And as e-sport is been already gaining its popularity world-wide, we will be contributing in this effort too.

Venue : IT building can be a very good spot for all the gaming to be organised. Though a venue is not must, but the fair play of the event can be maintained by opting for the venue.

Budget: The budget for the event should not be much, considering the fact that the systems in our labs can be used if we are considering for games on PC or else if, the mobile gaming is considered, than we might as well approach for various mobile company for sponsoring the events. That will help in cutting costs. Considering the above points the cost of the event shall not surpass the amount of 30,000. Much of the amount can be organized by the participants in form of entry fee.

People needed : There must be a no. of people that must be involved. One that can take care of the expenditure part, two coordinators to maintain a link between the participants and the management. Also there must be people available during the event to rectify the problems a player might face during the event. So to be on the safer side, at least 6 people are to be required considering the scheduling of the events can be done by them.

PCC Task 1

Publicity : For publicity purpose, a team can be made which will be looking after the scheduling and publishing of the event related dates and timing. The event wont need much publicity but a attractive prize can always boost the publicity. Whatsapp, Instagram and other social media application can be used to make more people aware.
